I'm a member of the Keystone Trails Association and president of the Standing Stone Trail Club. For the past 20 years I have been hooked on trails, and I'm not the only one. I found that volunteers working on trails come from all walks of life. The one common thing that bonds us together is we all want to build good foot trails for hikers. Working together helps build a fellowship that really comes together around the campfire after a hard days work. So come out and work on the trails. Bring your grub and water and we'll provide the tools and gloves!
